Ask Nana

E-mail your questions to nana@keywestgayrag.com

Dear Nana,

I don't even know if I have a problem, but I am writing you anyway. I have a good life, a good job, a boyfriend that loves me, a great family and plenty of friends. For all intensive purposes, I should be loving life! But I'm not... I'm not miserable, but I just feel numb to it all. I feel like there is no fire in my life, and I don't know what to do to fix that. Any advice??

-Bland, Bland Betty

Jesus, Mary... I mean, Betty... get a grip, love! Hell, if I want to spice up my life I just have a bowel movement! "Golden years" my ass... literally. But, honestly, you aren't alone, love. Many people feel like that. When the waters of life are calm it's sometimes hard to be excited about the journey. So here's what you do: mix it up, sugar snap!! Go out, this weekend and buy some bold colored paint and paint, at least, your bedroom a new intensely "you" color. Then, give your daily routine a face lift. I'm willing to bet that you always go the same way to work; never varying from the path you set God knows how long ago. So take a new route, each day, to everything. I'm willing to bet you will discover sights and sounds you didn't know were waiting there for you all along. Then call some of those good friends of yours and make plans to go do something as a group that none of you have ever done. Parasailing, sky diving, dinner at a new restaurant, an afternoon boat trip; these are all possibilities for great new memories. In the end, just take a little time to think about all the big and little things you do each day. When you find yourself doing something you've done the same way a million times, stop, and put a fresh spin on it. And for Christ's sake, Betty... have a cocktail!

Dear Nana,

I have recently been offered an amazing new job that I have dreamed of for a long time. But there is one big catch: it requires me to move to the other side of the country! If I take the job, I will be leaving behind my home of 10 years, my friends, some of my family and potentially, my lover. My guy isn't too keen on just picking up and moving to the other side of the country just so that I can take a job. Plus he he's not sure of what his job and life possibilities will be so far away from where he has always lived. HELP! What do I do?!

-Working Joe

Oh Joe,

These are the toughies that I always struggle to guide you kids on. Either way the cookie crumbles, you end up giving something up. It sounds like this job means a lot to you, and following your dreams is one of the most important things we do in this life. But, on the other hand, you can't say enough about how important family and friends... and lovers are. You need to really search your soul on this one. If you and your boyfriend really think that you are going to make a go at staying together for the long haul, then you need to make this decision together. I would not advocate you moving, and him staying behind, and you both trying to make it work from a distance... love, shmove, you're both men... so it won't be long before you are both sucking and fucking transcontinentally! Listen, whatever choice you make, try to remember nothing is forever. Jobs come and go.. but so do some boyfriends. You need to follow your heart and go where the joy is... and if there is reliable cock where the joy is... all the better!

*Do you have problems? Of course you do!! Why not let Nana help you?! Send your questions to:

Give My Regrets to Duval Street

by: Brad Loekle

It is my second morning waking up in Key West and I have woken to the sound of rain rolling down the tin roof of my good friend Neil Chamberlain. I am, admittedly, a little bit hung over. Thanks to the efforts of the staff and talent at Bourbon St. & 801 Bourbon I have been perpetually intoxicated for 48 hours straight. I have never gotten so wasted in 14 feet of pavement! I am lying in my bed, exchanging my morning text messages with Porsche. Thanks to her, I now use over 5,000 texts a month and it is my belief that gays have now made texting the new post-modern conversation. She and I are deciding when to meet up when the rain stops and we suddenly hear a tuba, sounding above the rooftops, playing the opening phrase of "When You Wish Upon a Star". It may have been the single gayest moment in my life... and that includes blowing the entire track team in high school!

I was, until the last week of January, a Key West virgin. I knew I was going to be in for a hell of a time when within an hour of arriving in Key West, Rhett from Bourbon St. had thrown a wet towel on me (because I'm the "manatee") and RV Beaumont was trying to auction off my blowjob skills outside of 801! I've never felt so welcome... well, I felt a little more welcome after the night three different men tried to make me air tight... God bless Key West and all the filthy, hairy men in it!

I would like to take some time to celebrate some of the entertainers of Key West. I have been a part of the NYC gay nightlife scene for the better part of a decade, and I have got to say that a lot of the New York drag queens can't hold a candle to the "Ladies" of Key West. It was great to see the familiar (peculiar) face of Gassy Winds, who I know from her Fire Island days. Her Britney Spears number is not to be missed! Then there was Ma Jon who I simply fell in love with. Sushi blew me... away with simply gorgeous outfits and her killer (oh so quiet) number. I was, as always, tickled pink to share the stage all weekend with my beloved Porsche. She's my favorite girl, and boy, and I literally laughed myself to sleep each night! And, last but not least, RV (friggin') Beaumont. Holy Shit, Gurl! First of all, I have never seen anything in all gay heaven and hell like her "Clockwork Oranged-Amazing Techno Colored-Rocky Horror Bingo from Hell". There are no words for what I saw that Sunday afternoon... there are no words. And then there is her Disney on acid Sunday night show!

I laughed so hard I lost my voice and am truly honored that she yodeled for me...twice! Not to mention the closing number; which is simply the finest and most truthful closing to ANY show that I have seen in quite some time!!

And now, some Thank You's & Acknowledgements....

To Neil, for giving me a home and home base while there. You are a gem and a doll and I can't wait till my next visit!

To Porsche & Chuck, for taking care of me the ENTIRE trip! For trips to Arby's in a Mercedes to see my Dad, and for always making sure that there was a ho in the backyard.

To Surrey at 801, you're insane, I love you. And, for the record, drinking shots of Midori at 11AM does NOT count towards your daily allowance of fruits and vegetables...

To Gassy, for continuing to flip your burgers across the USA & for the most disgusting Britney Spears strip tease I've ever seen.

To the man with a penis as big as a Pepsi can who allowed me to test my limits on it... I salute you, sir!

To the people who actually tipped me as a white trash stripper during Porsche's show... you are sick, sick people.

And, to RV, for making me laugh all weekend long. And for making me cry too... it's tough to break a comedian... but you did it, girl!

I am now back in New York, freezing, gross New York and I am already missing the sun and fun of Key West (and by fun, I mean cock). Like it or not, this is not the last you've seen of Brad Loekle!

Brad Loekle is a stand-up comic, radio personality, and writer based out of NYC. He can be heard Wednesday mornings on Sirius Radio "OutQ in the Morning" from 7-11am. # Getting Around Key West

Now that you're in Key West, you probably don't need a car. Parking is challenging and expensive. After a night of drinking on Duval, you definitely don't want to drive anything. Even riding a bicycle while intoxicated will get you a DUI.

If you are lucky enough to be staying in old town, walking is your best bet.

For short trips, try a pedicab. They are a unique way to get around and your partner will give you bonus points for the romantic ride home.

Taxis are just a phone call away and arrive within minutes. Any bartender will call one for you.

Scooters and bicycles are inexpensive to rent and can be a fun way to see the island. Please ask for proper training and information about local laws. Scooters may be parked at designated motorcycle spaces and there are bicycle stands all over. If you forget to lock up your bike, you won't see it again.

Electric cars are fun to explore but still require a standard car parking spot. Electric cars are not permitted on North or South Roosevelt Blvd.

Don't drink and drive. You might spill your drink.

Hanging with the Haggard

It proves informative, yet treacherous, to vacation with citizens of Seniority, those folks who boarded the spaceship in Cocoon, that dementia-driven demographic who consider RLS exercise and "dressy sweats" formalwear.

My grandmother Yvette, freshly-sprung from an involuntary 14-day hold, pleaded to accompany your Angie to Key West. The windowless pantry she calls home is particularly uninviting when unheated in the Midwest Winter. And so your Angie caved -- Yvette is, after all, in her Golden years. (By that, I mean her jaundiced skin.) Having already borrowed a friend's identity, I loaned myself his Frequent Flyer mileage and we had Yvette's boarding pass faster than you can say Sunshine Law. Uhm, Sunshine State.

"I love you more than my new partial!," she crowed in faked gratitude.

Boarding in a shoe that redefined comfortable, Grandma spent the flight take-off counting her moles. When a shaken attendant indicated that an 87 year-old woman in a nippleless bra might unnerve fellow passengers, she pulled her hoodie back on and occupied herself by bellowing "Ride 'em, cowboy!" whenever the decrepit plane lurched in turbulence.

Seeing Key West through the reddened eyes of another is enlightening; add to that cataracts, clumped false eyelash glue and drooping lids that resemble scrotums and it's positively revelatory. "Is everyone here an immoral drunk?," she asked admiringly. I did due diligence, then nodded.

She was gleeful. "My kind of town! Light me up, phucktard!"

She promptly erected her own shrine to senility. Prescribed and OTC medications, outdated vitamin supplements and Preparation H, which is apparently a total-body moisturizer, so dominated the kitchen countertop I had to relocate my hotplate.

An ironing board was unfolded, never to be collapsed, to "press my things off." Yvette takes tremendous offense at wrinkles on her clamdiggers yet somehow ignores the overlapping chin wattles and the translucent crepe of her elbows.

At Fausto's, $312.78 bought two bags of groceries and a hermetically-sealed rose that wilted when we unfurled the plastic.

It was an omen.

After marveling together how the pink, lavender and fuschia hues of Mallory Square sunset precisely matched her rosacea, Yvette decided to guest dance at the Red Garter Saloon.

"Not bad, huh, boys?" she'd cackle, squatting to grip and lift beer bottles with her Vajaws of Life.

After being expelled, we detoured off Duval to Whitehead so she could quietly count the change she'd collected. I walked slightly ahead, marveling at gated, showcase homes and speculating which had falsified Homestead Exemptions. What sounded like a felled Banyan tree mingled with the guttural "hhhmmppphhh!" usually expelled by a Sumo wrestler, and I turned.

It appeared Grandmother was napping, a backward-S on the pavement still gripping her baggie of silver. But no, she had stumbled and collapsed, the heel of her red Wal-Mart pump snared by a sidewalk gouge.

"I've broke sumphthin'," she moaned.

"Your hip, a leg!?" Panicked, I looked around for a crane or backhoe, since Yvette dearly loves a hush puppy.

"My hair pick. Help a damsel in distress up, 'ya dingleberry!" Her Tootsie eyeglasses were cockeyed but the only real damage was a shaved knuckle, bloodied in the spill. I chided her cutrate evening shoe -- the cork heel belonged in a wine bottle, not on unsteady feet that look like ancient potatoes with eyes -- but all she could lament was "my missing earbob." I reminded her she'd improvised it as a clitring at the bar.

Lesson learned. Never offer your back to the early Alzheimer patient in Key West. They will either fall or, maybe worse, become immovably mesmerized by a store window display of professional diving equipment. (This happened, too.) Other trueisms I share with you:

A BM is toxic and will rapidly dissolve a porcelain finish.

Scorched panties can be easily mistook for a downed hot-air balloon. Don't misguidedly alert the FFA or Homeland Security.

Don't fuss with ice, tumblers, refrigeration. They will contentedly resume drinking the warm, flat Coca-Cola left on the edge of the bathtub the day before.

The demise of peers is all they know. Brace yourself for terminal illness anecdotes that always conclude in death throes so grievous "hospital orderlies stuffed towels under doors to muffle the screams!"

A Poise Pad bestows none.

Bites and sores spontaneously emerge, like Stigmata, about the ankles.

Flossing is accomplished with a shoestring. And under no circumstances offer a hard and crusty dinner roll. They will still be chewing 90 minutes later.

To the elderly, tipping is unseemly. The arrival of a Medicaid card apparently liberates them from gratuity and they will leave your Martin's server absolutely nothing.

En route back to the Midwest, polishing her KISS belt buckle, Yvette confessed she'd had "one helluva fine time". She'd made -- and promptly lost -- friends. One john -- uhm, suitor -- actually believed the fib that her varicose veins were tattoos. She'd even unearthed enough local dirt to mold a small island, from Drew and the DQs to which clubkid intends to dance permanently North.

She even officially redefined American geography. The Southernmost Point is now Grandmother Yvette's left tit.

Then, never disappointing, she stole 34 biscotti from the beverage cart. She pelted the Delta pilot with them as we disembarked, complaining they were stale, then added her hope that he'd lose his job if they merged with Northwest.

When she barked "see you at Spring Break, carbface!" at the luggage carousel, I began to tremble.

Angie Baby

Key West's GLBT & Allied Business Guild Turns 30

John C. Giuliano

Key West Business Guild Executive Director

Over three decades ago a group of Key West business people gathered together to form one of the nation's first chamber of commerce type organizations specifically aimed at marketing a vacation destination to the gay and lesbian community and serving gay & lesbian owned businesses and their allies.

Forming a Gay & Lesbian business association with a focus on promoting travel and tourism in the late 1970's was a brave and bold concept. Of course, Key West was already known as a gay destination by that time, but Key West was on the forefront of marketing to the GLBT community which is something that most travel destinations have adopted now.

Since 1978 the Key West Business Guild has invited and welcomed countless GLBT tourists and their friends to this culturally diverse and beautiful sub tropical island paradise. Key West's One Human Family philosophy is evident by the over 300 business members and individual supporters of the Guild.

Visitors are encouraged to join the local GLBT & Allied community in supporting Guild members. Please make use of the Guild's Brochure Map, Business Directory Pocket Guide, website www.GayKeyWestfl.com, and visit the businesses listed and advertised there.

The guides can be found in many establishments around town or stop by the Guild's Visitor Center, 513 Truman Avenue (behind the Duval Street Denny's and located in the Gay & Lesbian Community Center), where in addition to the maps, you will find information and discount offers for restaurants, bars, accommodations, attractions on and off the water, shopping, and more.

We also suggest that you don't miss riding on the Nation's only Gay and Lesbian Historic Trolley Tour while you are here. Hop on our rainbow-decorated trolley any Saturday at 10:50 a.m. to catch the best of Key West in this 70-minute tour that highlights our rich gay and lesbian history. More information about the tour and tickets may be obtained at the Guild Visitor Center or call 800-535-7797.

Aquarius

Jan 20 – Feb 18

With Uranus on a downturn, you should try to cheer up and gain some confidence. There is absolutely nothing wrong with you that re-incarnation won't cure.

Pisces

Feb 19 – Mar 20

It is admirable that you still love nature in spite of what it has done to you.

Aries

Mar 21 – Apr 19

You will never get picked up in Bourbon Street Pub if you are going to continue sitting there looking like an envelope with no address on it.

Taurus

Apr 20 – May 20

Some cause happiness wherever they go; you, however, WHENEVER you go.

Gemini

May 21 – Jun 20

Start looking at your homosexuality as an act of Christian charity. With all of those straight guys out there looking for a woman.....you are giving your share to them.

Cancer

Jun 21 – Jul 22

Sadly, you have all of the virtues that people dislike, and none of the vices that people admire.

Leo

Jul 23 – Aug 22

Work on developing your sense of style and taste this month. At this point, if you were Michelangelo, the Sistine chapel would be wallpapered.

Virgo

Aug 23 – Sep 22

If you were to write a book about your sexual exploits, it would probably sell as well as "Amelia Earhart's Guide to the Pacific."

Libra

Sep 23 – Oct 22

Get out and have some fun while you are in Key West!! If you behave here the way you do at home, people are going to find you about as exciting as an Amish science festival

Scorpio

Oct 23 – Nov 21

While you are in town, the best way to avoid being labelled as a "flirt" is to yield easily.

Sagittarius

Nov 22 – Dec 21

No matter how many times you try to convince people that you are not a slut, they all know that it is NOT a "gym membership" at one place you frequent, and no one really buys books at the other.

Capricorn

Dec 22 – Jan 19

A word of work advice. Since your employer still considers homosexuality a disease, extend your stay in Key West, call your boss and say...."sorry, can't work next week, still queer."
