So I went on a date a week ago and everything was going great. We had an amazing dinner, went out for drinks afterwards, we laughed and flirted and I could tell we were both really into each other. At the end of the night, he asked me if I wanted to go back to his place and hook up. Of course I said yes! Well, our chemistry in bed was just as good as it was everyplace else. He wanted to top me. I was a little hesitant at first because, well, I didn't think the date was going to "go there" and I hadn't really "planned" for this. But I wanted to make him happy on our first time together, so I climbed up on him and we started doing it. Suddenly, I felt a lot of "movement" down there. But by the time I really realized what was happening, it was too late. I pooped on him. Not a lot! But not a little either. We were both terribly embarrassed. He was really sweet about it, but that kind of ended the night and he hasn't called me since. I really did like him a lot... should I call him, or just give up?

Well, talk about being up shit's creek?! Sorry... I had to! Listen, I'm going to give you the short and sweet answer and then a little old-fashioned advice. The short answer is: sure, call him! Worst is, he doesn't answer or call you back. But either way, it won't be any more embarrassing than your road trip down the Hershey highway together. I'm never a fan of giving up, so in general... always take the road ahead. Now, for some advice... always, always "plan" for buttfucking! I don't know if you know this or not, but you're a gay man.... Buttfucking is kind of your thing! Especially if you're the bottom, you need to forego the spicy burrito at dinner, if you want to get some spicy burrito later on in the evening. In other words, you need to decide which end you want to focus on in a date before the date begins. The more things you shove in your pie hole, the less you'll be able to shove in your corn hole. Got it, shitty britches?

Dear Nana,

With the recent legal goings-on in California with gay marriage: first we had it, then we lost it, then we got it back, but we still might lose it; I was wondering your thoughts on gay marriage and just marriage in general?

Oh, glitter bug, look at you trying to ring some wisdom out of an old, smelly dish cloth like me! Listen, I think in the end, marriage should just be whatever the two people involved in it want it to be. I don't think states or governments should officiate anyone's marriages, be they straight, gay, bisexual, etc. Single people should have the same advantages as married people, because it isn't a talent to get married.

But, since it's unlikely that we'll erase all the marriage laws in my life... or yours... in the meantime I say let everyone get married! If you want to put yourself through the hell of families pressuring you to settle down, the hell of wedding planning, and then the "reward" of staring at the same schmuck for the next 50 years... then who am I to stop you? But me, I think the best way to live is to do the stuff that most other people aren't doing. When I see 100 people walking in one direction, I always just want to turn in the other direction to see what else there is. But that's me! You can't force me to get married and I shouldn't be able to keep you from getting married. And if you do, invite me... because I love an open bar and a chocolate fountain!

STR8-CATION

by: Brad Loekle

I travel a lot for work. And being a gay comedian, it means I also tend to travel to some pretty amazing locales, such as Key West! (I swear, I promise, I'm coming down this Fall/Winter! ;-)

Now, since many of the places I travel to tend to be "homo-centric", I thought that it was time I took a vacation with some of the breeders in my life. Specifically, one of the breeders who made me (my mom) and a potpourri of aunts, cousins, friends of the family, etc. I thought it would be fun to see how the "other half" vacation. For instance, what would it be like to spend 7 days of my life without seeing a drag queen, or a boy in a Speedo, or two lesbians fighting outside of bar over a third lesbian that neither one of them had been dating for 2 years?

It turned out that a friend of my mother's had a beach house on Block Island, RI. She wasn't able to use it for a week, so it was ours for free! A 3-story, multi-million dollar beach house, set up on a cliff overlooking the ocean. It sounded like heaven. But once we got there, I quickly learned that straight heaven is a lot like gay hell. First of all, the house was indeed beautiful. But it was also completely unairconditioned. And not just our house... ALL the houses... and ALL the restaurants... and ALL of EVERYTHING! There is no A/C on Block Island, because the electric for the whole damn place comes from giant diesel generators. I suddenly felt like we were staying in Mad Max's "Barter Town". This would have almost been fun; except I'd left my Tina Turner chainmail bikini at home. Now of course this meant that you needed to have every window wide open. Except you couldn't do that at night. And why couldn't you do that at night? Because, the heterotarded residents of Block Island pride themselves on the fact that they've made the island an "insect sanctuary". In fact, there are over 50 kinds of beetles on this little island... and on the very first night we were there, they were all attached to our house. There were so many beetles on our windows that in the morning you would find about two inches of beetle bodies on the outside window sills.

Really, straight people? A fucking beetle sanctuary??

On Saturday night, instead of drinking with friends or seeing an amazing drag show or hooking up with a random Latino in a taxi cab, I had the exhilarating experience of playing 8 rounds of Yahtzee with a room full of completely straight (and sober) idiots. During round 8.... Round..... EIGHT... a debate broke out as to what the rule is about taking "zero" in your Yahtzee "box" and then rolling Yahtzee. This led to a FORTY-FIVE MINUTE debate, which included people Googling the international Yahtzee rules. I couldn't take it... I couldn't.... TAKE IT! I grabbed the dice, stood on my chair and screamed,

"Are you people shitting me?! 45 minutes on 'taking a zero in Yahtzee'?! It is nearly twelve o'god-damn-clock on a Saturday... do you people know what that means? That means that if I was around normal, red blooded homosexuals I would already be drunk... and/or high... and/or have another man inside of me by now!!!! Now, I am taking these damn dice... along with a Xanax, an Ambien and a piece of cake to my bedroom. And the first person to knock on my door before tomorrow morning is going to be shitting dice tomorrow afternoon!" and, with that, I retired for the evening.

On the way home from Str8-cation (now sunburned and heat exhausted and worst of all still sober), my mother turned to me and said, "Well... for better or worse, at least we had an adventure!" I tried to explain to her... this was NOT an adventure. An adventure is when you try to use one of those free generic condoms they give out in gay bars; at 4AM when you're drunk, coked up and your waiting for your mail-order Brazilian Viagra to kick in.... now THAT is an adventure!

Brad Loekle is a comedian based out of NYC. He can be seen Thursday nights on TruTV's "The Smoking Gun" at 9PM & produces the longest running weekly gay comedy show in New York.

Whore--Scopes

Aquarius

Jan 20 – Feb 18

Well BearFest is finally here. Now you can tell everyone you gained all the weight just for this week and not because you're a lazy pig!

Pisces

Feb 19 – Mar 20

It's a good thing underwear isn't sized based on what it will be carrying like bras are. If they were, you'd still be in training briefs.

Aries

Mar 21 – Apr 19

If you really want to ever get a date again, I strongly suggest you sign up for the show "Dating in the Dark."

Taurus

Apr 20 – May 20

You only have yourself to blame for your most recent arrest. Next time, drink a little less and you may realize that Ke$ha was not singing to you when she said "Take it off."

Gemini

May 21 – Jun 20

Unless you're planning on doing drag, it's time to do something about those man-boobs. Start with less twinkies maybe get off the couch at least once a day.

Cancer

Jun 21 – Jul 22

Don't let your age bother you. Age is only a number. In your case, it's a really, really REALLY, big number.

Leo

Jul 23 – Aug 22

Key West has been plagued with more power outages than normal. You've been asked time and time again to not plug your industrial strength dildo into a standard wall outlet.

Virgo

Aug 23 – Sep 22

Ahh dear Virgo, another birthday is here. You're not getting older, you're getting fatter AND older.

Libra

Sep 23 – Oct 22

I'm not saying that you're a slut, but the fact that you have a refillable antibiotic prescription definitely says something!

Scorpio

Oct 23 – Nov 21

With all the rain we've had lately, maybe it's time to find some indoor activities to occupy your time. Unfortunately, you're too ugly to have a date so maybe take up knitting, crocheting, or needlepoint.

Sagittarius

Nov 22 – Dec 21

Facebook may have been the single best invention for you. You're finally able to get guys to poke you!

Capricorn

Dec 22 – Jan 19

Going through a little dry spell? Here's what to do. Dye the gray out of your pubes, take a viagra and find a glory hole. No one will know how old you truly are!
