Dear Nana,

I think there's something wrong with me. Not mentally, lol. But I have this problem when I climax. For about 2-3 minutes after I cum, the head of my penis is so intensely sensitive that if I try to pull out, or if the guy who's blowing me moves at all, it causes severe pain. I can usually play it off if I'm topping and be romantic and say something like "I just want to be in you a little while longer.."; but if I'm getting a blow job, I would literally have to hold their head in place forcefully until the sensation has passed. Have you heard of this before? Do you think there's something medically wrong with me?

First of all, leave it to a man... any man (gay or straight) to think it's "romantic" to tell their partner that they just want to leave their dick in them for a little while. Your sex partner isn't a storage unit, ya homo. But now let's get to the meat of the question; which is, your meat! From what I understand, most men's penises get really sensitive right after sex. Of course, with the octogenarians I date, you usually have to light their pubes on fire just to get a moan out of them! I wouldn't say you're alone... but it does seem that your case is a little more extreme. I don't think you have boner cancer or anything like that. If I were you I would just find a really dirty, submissive bottom (German bottoms seem to be the best for this...) and then you'll have someone who doesn't mind spending an extra few minutes impaled on your penis at the end of a long day's bone!

Dear Nana,

My girlfriend has had a pen pal in prison for a long time (few years). She writes to this man at least once a week and vice versa. I recently started reading the letters and they are actually quite explicit and flirtatious. She doesn't know I've read them, and when I try to get her to tell me about them, she says they're private. The other day I skimmed through her journal and found numerous entries about her pen pal: how his letters sexually stimulate her, how she can't wait to get each one, eat etc. Now, here's the thing: I know that she's been bisexual in the past and I'm worried that she misses that part of her life and will eventually leave me because of this. I've been planning on proposing to her for a few months, but I want us to get this whole pen pal thing out in the open before we move forward in our relationship. What's the best you for me to broach the topic with her?

You and your girlfriend would happen to live on Wisteria Lane and work at General Hospital, would you? Oh my Lord and Taylor there is about a seven layer bean dip of crazy to sift through here! First things, first: unless you're both 21 (which I doubt you are) dating anyone who keeps pen pals in prison for fun should have been your first red flag. Second, bisexuality isn't something you try out for a season... like bangs or sweater vests. You either like both boys and girls, or you like either... Though you should never deny a bisexual their right to fulfill both sides of their sexual personality; I don't like that her way of venting her hetero-tendencies is by cock-teasing a hardened criminal. Now on to the big number three point: Your girlfriend's journal is not a swimming pool... you don't get to just "skim" it! Your invasion of her privacy is in direct proportion to your level of distrust in her. Which is why it boggles my aged brain that in the same breath that you say your reading her journals and opening her mail... you also want to marry her? My best advice, and I mean this with all the love in the world... is you two either need to get into counseling or get the hell away from each other. Best of luck, sugar tits!

*Do you have problems? Of course you do!! Why not let Nana help you?! Send your questions to:

A living work of art, crafted by loving hearts, visits Key West after over 4 years when sections of the AIDS Memorial Quilt are displayed at Graffiti, 701 Duval Street, from the 13th of this month through World AIDS Day, December 1, from 10 a.m to 10 p.m. daily.

The installation is a cooperative effort between Graffiti owner, Phil Anderton, who initially proposed the project, and the Education department of AIDS Help of Monroe County. Additional partnership includes an outreach grant from the Substance Abuse Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA).

The 54-ton, handmade memorial tapestry unfurls the humanity behind the statistics of those lost to AIDS since The Quilt's San Francisco origins. The sheer scope has precluded it, except for rare occasions, from being seen in its entirety; most notably, it has been displayed on the National Mall in Washington D.C. three times. Nominated for the 1989 Nobel Peace Prize, The Quilt was also the subject of 'Common Threads: Stories From The Quilt,' which won the Oscar as best feature-length documentary in that same year.

That's why Graffiti owner Phil Anderton considers it a privilege to display the seven 12" x 12" sections of The Quilt, even if it meant re-conceiving his store's retail space during a part of the Holiday shopping season to accommodate the panels.

"This is history," Anderton comments. "With all that has beset the GLBT community lately -- the horrendous bullying/suicides, bashing incidents, the politicization of gay marriage, Proposition 8 -- The Quilt is inspirational and pure. It is, literally, the largest community art project in the world."

Flashback: 1985. Longtime San Francisco gay rights activist Cleve Jones, who helped organize the annual candlelight march honoring Harvey Milk, urged attendees to tape name placards of those lost to AIDS to the walls of the Federal Building. It looked, in its enormity, like a patchwork quilt. Two years later, a small collective of strangers convened in a city storefront to explore how to document for posterity those lives cut short. Those names would not be swallowed up by history, they vowed. This meeting of friends, family and lovers evolved into The NAMES Project Foundation, which continues to be the Atlanta-based caretaker.

To maximize Key West exposure during the 2 ½-week period, special gatherings are being planned, beginning with debut festivities at Graffiti on Saturday the 13th from 6-8 p.m. By month's end, a special 2nd reception is planned to coincide with World AIDS Day, with The Quilt to serve as a backdrop to other components of living with HIV/AIDS. On November 30th, from 7-9 p.m., the Monroe County Health Department will officially launch a book profiling local men and women who are involved in the HIV/AIDS prevention movement. "Stronger" features personal accounts of the early days of the movement, as well as prevention messages ranging from "wear a condom" to "love yourself." In their own words, contributors to the book tell how they came to know Key West, celebrate the community's openness and support for those affected by HIV/AIDS and pay tribute to those who have passed.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt transforms heartbreak into hope, says Derrick Traylor, Education Director of AIDS Help.

"More than 19 million people have seen the AIDS Memorial Quilt during its international display. It represents a real cross-section of this country. It's made available to everything from schools and community centers to places of worship and corporations," Traylor notes. "As our agency wages war on behalf of our clients living with HIV/AIDS every single day, this is a reminder of those battles lost. The stark reality is The Quilt now bears over 83,000 names...and they continue to come in. But love never dies."

For more localized information, go to www.AIDSHelp.cc or call AIDS Help at 305.296.6196. AIDS Help information is also available at Facebook (AIDS Help of Monroe County) or YouTube (AHMonroe County). IT GETS WORSE

(Bully Edition)

by: Brad Loekle

For those who have read my filthy and funny articles for the past few years, you know I don't take a lot seriously. But the events of recent months have given even a jaded, bitter gaylebrity like me reason to take pause. I am so saddened... and so angry... when I think about the number of gay youth we've lost to suicide, that I just want to go to each of their former schools and personally beat up the kids who beat up on them. I'm sure many of you, like me, have been intensely moved by the amazing campaign that Dan Savage started, "It Gets Better". I know that when I was 13 and growing up gay and alone in Upstate New York; something like that would have changed my whole life. But I think it's time we took it a step further. First, I want to start telling the gay kids that it's even better than better! If you're getting spit on everyday in History class, I just don't think it's enough to tell these kids that someday they'll get to wear body glitter and French kiss a go-go boy. Think of it, politicians sell us loads of manure all the time, and it works! Let's tell these kids that if they just stick it out and make it to 18... we've got unicorns and magical powers! That we have a whole homosexual Hogwarts school of Faggotry, where they'll be greeted by drag queens and taught how to sit on a broomstick properly. Oh, did I mention that "broomstick" is my pet name for latin dick? Anyway, I want to really give our kids something to dream of. Not just, "It gets better, then you move to a fun gay place, but you have a lot of student loans, and you get your first STD, but you make amazing friends and laugh more than you cry, and then at some point you adopt something Asian".

The next project we need to do is to make videos for all the little straight bastards out there who are torturing our kids. It's about time they knew that for kids like that; life after high school just gets worse. Let's be brutally honest, the most your garden variety homophobic school bully ever achieves is a felony! Sure I'm sure some of them go on to be Dairy Queen managers, but let's face it, at the end of the day those assholes lives just get worse. I want to make videos telling them "Hey... douche bag, see how your dad drinks to drown out the sound of your mother's hatred? That's you and your pregnant high school girlfriend in 20 years... good luck with that!" Besides, let's face it, the thing that always cheers up a queer is seeing the people who have harmed them, fail! So I think it's about time we let all our little gaybies in on the big cosmic joke: That being teased and bullied as a kid, is usually a sign of greatness, intelligence and sensitivity. Do you think Oprah, Bill Gates, Hilary Clinton, Kate Clinton, Adam Lambert, Lady Gaga or anyone in any field who was ever worth anything wasn't picked on for being a nerd, a geek, a fatty... a fag? Our kids need to know, and we need to remember, that what made us all different is what made us all worth anything at all. And for the kids who aren't different... well bless their hearts... because it only gets worse (for them!).

If parents and teachers, and society as a whole, are going to let our children's playground resemble a prison yard... then let's teach our kids some prison basics while we're at it: the first day of 5th grade, you walk up to the meanest bully on the playground... and you bite his motherfucking ear off. Then you shank the gym teacher. At that point I'm pretty sure everyone will leave you alone, kids.

I don't want to create a generation of gay teens who run around in weird "Mad Max"-esque leather and chain mail outfits terrorizing straight suburban America... but, now that I say that... those does sound pretty fucking awesome!

I know it sounds terribly judgmental to say that someone is "better" than someone else. But I'll argue til the day I die that in cases like this, it's true. Our kids ARE better than the scum bags who are torturing them... and it's about time both sides knew it.

Brad Loekle is a comedian based out of NYC. He can be seen Thursday nights on TruTV's "The Smoking Gun" at 9PM & produces the longest running weekly gay comedy show in New York.

Whore--Scopes

Aquarius

Jan 20 – Feb 18

This month will be a very bad month for you. Your identity will be stolen. Fortunately for you, your credit sucks so now someone else will get declined.

Pisces

Feb 19 – Mar 20

As more and more people look for ways to save energy, do us all a favor and save energy by shutting your pie hole!

Aries

Mar 21 – Apr 19

Finally, you have what it takes to get your own TV show. Keep smoking and drinking as much as you do and you can replace Ma at Ma's Roadhouse!

Taurus

Apr 20 – May 20

With Fantasy Fest here, it's OK to live out your fantasy. You may have a little trouble finding a sheep and a yak in Key West however.

Gemini

May 21 – Jun 20

There are certain things you should not to to save money with. Your viagra pills are one of them. The fake ones you bought on the internet dissolved on your tongue and you couldn't talk for a week!

Cancer

Jun 21 – Jul 22

It's time to think about plastic surgery. In your case, you may want to ask about a bulk discount.

Leo

Jul 23 – Aug 22

The world does not revolve around you. Though if you gain any more weight, you may start to have your own gravitational pull.

Virgo

Aug 23 – Sep 22

There is a new dating website for someone as self centered as you. It's called MeHarmony!

Libra

Sep 23 – Oct 22

You are a mean, dirty, ugly, nasty troll of a man. Those are your GOOD qualities!

Scorpio

Oct 23 – Nov 21

Happy Birthday dear Scorpio. Don't forget to update your Manhunt profile with your new age. Well, at least add a year to the age you think people will believe you are. (By the way, they don't believe you!)

Sagittarius

Nov 22 – Dec 21

If Orbitz gum can clean a dirty mouth, perhaps you should shove a piece up your ass. Or, at least douche!

Capricorn

Dec 22 – Jan 19

It's time to re-evaluate your financial situation. Start by reviewing your investments to see how they're doing. In your case, this consists of your Batman comic book collection and your false teeth.
