MAN ABOUT TOWN

Lately, I have been trying to take in the town on foot. I find that just by walking around, I really appreciate what the island has to offer and see something other than tail lights and traffic lights.

Recently, I found myself walking around the Truman Waterfront. If you're not sure where that is, just go as far as you can on either Southard or Petronia and you will walk right into the park.

The park has something for all ages and all activity levels.

There is a paved path with an exercise station every so often. Yes, you can actually work out as you're walking along the path or, if you're like me, you can walk past these torture devices while eating your Oreos.

You can walk along the water and watch the ships come and go. This is also a great alternative to watch the sunset.

As you walk along the water, you will see the Coast Guard cutter, the Ingham. This retired ship is now a museum and is open for tours Tue - Sat from 10:00 AM - 4:00 PM.

There's also a large splash pad for kids and while I did see some adults playing there as well, I believe they were accompanied by children. I don't know if they would appreciate a grown man without children playing in the water so I moved on.

On the other end of the age spectrum, I found the attraction that was perfect for me. There are park benches you can sit on and look out over the water. Finally, something that was right at my skill level. That was where I spent most of my time!

IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION

What is the most important information I should know about BIKTARVY®?

BIKTARVY may cause serious side effects:

- ▶ Worsening of hepatitis B (HBV) infection. If you have both HIV-1 and HBV and stop taking BIKTARVY, your HBV may suddenly get worse. Do not stop taking BIKTARVY without first talking to your healthcare provider, as they will need to monitor your health.

Who should not take BIKTARVY?

Do not take BIKTARVY if you take:

- ▶ dofetilide
- ▶ rifampin
- ▶ any other medicines to treat HIV-1

What are the other possible side effects of BIKTARVY?

Serious side effects of BIKTARVY may also include:

- ▶ Changes in your immune system. Your immune system may get stronger and begin to fight infections. Tell your healthcare provider if you have any new symptoms after you start taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ Kidney problems, including kidney failure. Your healthcare provider should do blood and urine tests to check your kidneys. If you develop new or worse kidney problems, they may tell you to stop taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ Too much lactic acid in your blood (lactic acidosis), which is a serious but rare medical emergency that can lead to death. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you get these symptoms: weakness or being more tired than usual, unusual muscle pain, being short of breath or fast breathing, stomach pain with nausea and vomiting, cold or blue hands and feet, feel dizzy or lightheaded, or a fast or abnormal heartbeat.

- ▶ Severe liver problems, which in rare cases can lead to death. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you get these symptoms: skin or the white part of your eyes turns yellow, dark "tea-colored" urine, light-colored stools, loss of appetite for several days or longer, nausea, or stomach-area pain.

The most common side effects of BIKTARVY in clinical studies were diarrhea (6%), nausea (5%), and headache (5%). Tell your healthcare provider if you have any side effects that bother you or don't go away.

What should I tell my healthcare provider before taking BIKTARVY?

- ▶ All your health problems. Be sure to tell your healthcare provider if you have or have had any kidney or liver problems, including hepatitis virus infection.
- ▶ All the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, antacids, laxatives, vitamins, and herbal supplements. BIKTARVY and other medicines may affect each other. Keep a list of all your medicines and show it to your healthcare provider and pharmacist, and ask if it is safe to take BIKTARVY with all of your other medicines.
- ▶ If you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if BIKTARVY can harm your unborn baby. Tell your healthcare provider if you become pregnant while taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ If you are breastfeeding (nursing) or plan to breastfeed. Do not breastfeed. HIV-1 can be passed to the baby in breast milk.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch, or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Ask your healthcare provider if BIKTARVY is right for you.

Please see Important Facts about BIKTARVY, including important warnings, on the following page.

Because HIV doesn't change who you are.

What is BIKTARVY?

BIKTARVY is a complete, 1-pill, once-a-day prescription medicine used to treat HIV-1 in adults. It can either be used in people who have never taken HIV-1 medicines before, or people who are replacing their current HIV-1 medicines and whose healthcare provider determines they meet certain requirements.

BIKTARVY does not cure HIV-1 or AIDS. HIV-1 is the virus that causes AIDS.

IMPORTANT FACTS

This is only a brief summary of important information about BIKTARVY[®] and does not replace talking to your healthcare provider about your condition and your treatment.

MOST IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT BIKTARVY

BIKTARVY may cause serious side effects, including:

- Worsening of hepatitis B (HBV) infection. If you have both HIV-1 and HBV, your HBV may suddenly get worse if you stop taking BIKTARVY. Do not stop taking BIKTARVY without first talking to your healthcare provider, as they will need to check your health regularly for several months.

ABOUT BIKTARVY

BIKTARVY is a complete, 1-pill, once-a-day prescription medicine used to treat HIV-1 in adults. It can either be used in people who have never taken HIV-1 medicines before, or people who are replacing their current HIV-1 medicines and whose healthcare provider determines they meet certain requirements.

BIKTARVY does not cure HIV-1 or AIDS. HIV-1 is the virus that causes AIDS.

Do NOT take BIKTARVY if you also take a medicine that contains:

- dofetilide
- rifampin
- any other medicines to treat HIV-1

BEFORE TAKING BIKTARVY

Tell your healthcare provider all your medical conditions, including if you:

- Have or have had any kidney or liver problems, including hepatitis infection.
- Are pregnant or plan to become pregnant.
- Are breastfeeding (nursing) or plan to breastfeed. Do not breastfeed if you have HIV-1 because of the risk of passing HIV-1 to your baby.

Tell your healthcare provider about all the medicines you take:

- Keep a list that includes all prescription and over-the-counter medicines, antacids, laxatives, vitamins, and herbal supplements, and show it to your healthcare provider and pharmacist.
- Ask your healthcare provider or pharmacist about medicines that interact with BIKTARVY.

POSSIBLE SIDE EFFECTS OF BIKTARVY

BIKTARVY can cause serious side effects, including:

- Those in the “Most Important Information About BIKTARVY” section.
- Changes in your immune system.
- New or worse kidney problems, including kidney failure.
- Too much lactic acid in your blood (lactic acidosis), which is a serious but rare medical emergency that can lead to death. - The most common side effects of BIKTARVY in clinical studies were diarrhea (6%), nausea (5%), and headache (5%).

These are not all the possible side effects of BIKTARVY. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you have any new symptoms while taking BIKTARVY.

Your healthcare provider will need to do tests to monitor your health before and during treatment with BIKTARVY.

HOW TO TAKE BIKTARVY

Take BIKTARVY 1 time each day with or without food.

LGBT Book Reviews by Terri Schlichenmeyer

"RAINBOW WARRIOR: MY LIFE IN COLOR" BY GILBERT BAKER
c.2019, Chicago Review Press | $26.99 | 256 pages

At its most basic, it's just a piece of cloth.

A nice poly-blend, perhaps, or a hank of nylon in a fade-resistant color. There are holes in one end to fasten to a pole or rope, but it's otherwise just a piece of cloth. Yet, people have died for it and, as in the new book "Rainbow Warrior" by Gilbert Baker, that flag could be the fabric of revolution.

Even as a small child, Gilbert Baker knew that he was gay.

He grew up in Kansas, a child who loved to draw, create, wear fancy dresses, and dream of being an artist. Alas, art wasn't a career in his parents' eyes so Baker, as a young man, lied about his gayness and enlisted in the army, where he quickly realized that he was in for years of abuse (at best) or Vietnam (at worst). He "lived in terror" before filing as a conscientious objector; the Army instead listed him as a medic and sent him to San Francisco.

It was the perfect accidental gift.

"When I got to San Francisco," he said, "I knew I wasn't ever going back to Kansas."

Five days a week, Baker worked in an Army laboratory; the rest of the time was his to fall in love, explore his new city, and work on his sewing skills. Stitching became an obsession and by 1977, he was making costumes and banners for demonstrations. When he was asked to make something special for the city's Gay Freedom Day Parade of 1978, he thought about the rainbow as a flag, and dived right in.

While that first flag was a big hit, Baker writes that the symbol didn't take off quite as much as he'd hoped. Still, it was present in every "street activists" event he was part of, at every parade, and protest. "One pair of scissors" and a mile of fabric could "change the whole dynamic," he wrote later. It was "a pure act of rebellion..."

"Rainbow Warrior" was compiled from several manuscripts that the late author Gilbert Baker left after his death in 2017, a fact that would have been helpful to have, early-on. You'll be more forgiving of the overly-florid prose, knowing that.

Aside from that annoyance – one appearing throughout the book – readers may also notice a bit of pretentiousness, lot of snarky fighting, endless drugs, and getting naked in Baker's narrative, which is likewise forgivable because much of it takes place post-Stonewall, post-Summer-of-Love, pre-AIDS.

And thus is the appeal here.

Baker was one of the more ferociously involved protesters, by his own account, and his anecdotes are priceless. He gives readers a good first-person look at early efforts for gay rights, and eye-opening, sometimes jaw-dropping, behind-the-scenes peeks at life as a young gay man during an uprising. It's a lively, outrageous look at outrage, in an account that seems not to have held one thing back. That makes "Rainbow Warrior" readable and entertaining and, despite its overly-ornate verbosity, a good look at revolution cut from a different cloth.

MY BIG GAY LIFE

Brad Loekle

ON THE STRAIGHT AND NARROW

Many of you know that I spend a good time of my year performing on gay cruises. It's been almost 10 years since I joined Atlantis (and then their sister company RSVP), and in all that time I've never been on a not-exclusively-gay cruise. Ever. Until last month when I ended up going on the ordinary sailing the week before our big gay cruise for RSVP in Alaska. And let me tell you, after having spent most of my adult life living in gay cities and neighborhoods, I'd forgotten what the straight world was really like. I felt like a gay Jacques Cousteau. Like Cock Cousteau diving into this alternate world that's all around us. But boy was it a lot less majestic than the Great barrier Reef. It was more like catfish noodling. First of all, there was a woman who kept her rolling carry on with her at all times. That, and a beach bag full of sandals. She brought them with her to buffet, to the pool, to the bar. I have no idea why and I was too terrified to ask. My two working theories are that: One, she was some sort of maritime bag lady. Or two, she was a ghost. Oh, wait, or maybe three: she was a maritime bag lady ghost! Jesus Christ, what is going on with the straights?!

Also, straight people don't really talk to each other. Not only don't they talk to the people around them, they barely talk to the people they're on vacation with. Many of them just walking the decks staring out in the night sky. I think black Ariel really fucked up straight white America. And I'm fine with that. While they're out of sorts let's make sure to grab every civil right we can!

Straight people on a cruise ship have no shame about ordering three entrees for one person... at dinner... in public. Now, this is one place where I think we could learn something from them. I, for one, eat like a damn hobbit: First breakfast, second breakfast, and so on. But I don't usually do it in public and all at once. I mean, there's a difference between not being ashamed to eat and looking like you're having your death row last meal.

I watched a 73-year-old woman order and then drink... in a 15-minute period... 9 shots of banana liqueur. Not chilled. I still, week's later have no other commentary or joke to make on this matter, other than to say I watched a 73-year-old woman order and then drink... in a FIFTEEN MINUTE period... NINE SHOTS of BANANA LIQUEUR.

NOT.
CHILLED.

I think my take away from the week is that I'm not just proud to be gay, I'm relieved. I now wake up sometimes from a nightmare where, in an alternate world, I'm a straight dude. And let me tell you, if the way they have a good time on vacation is any indication; it means we may not win every battle as a minority, but we sure do win at the game of life! So, keep on keeping it gay! (And lesbian, and transgender, and anything that keeps you from ordering 9 shots of banana liqueur. Not chilled.)

Brad Loekle was a semi-finalist on NBC's "Last Comic Standing". He can be seen every week on TruTV's "World's Dumbest", has written for Joan Rivers on E! "Fashion Police" & tours internationally. His book, "My Big Gay Life" is available on Amazon and at www.bradloekle.com

“We, the undersigned laity of the Florida Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church, are deeply grieved and heartbroken by results of the Special Session of the General Conference in St. Louis. ...We regret how the United Methodist Church has hurt our LGBTQIA+ family for decades, and how the recent adoption of the Traditional Plan has caused further pain already experienced by the LGBTQIA+ community. We believe the life and teaching of Jesus Christ reflects God’s love for all. ...”

“We wish to remain in dialogue with those who have different voices, and pray that we can become one church together celebrating and respecting the beautiful diversity of all God’s people wherever they may live. ...”

ASK NANA

E-mail your questions to nana@keywestgayrag.com

Dear Nana,

I have a health nut friend who insists all her friends try every new health kick she does. She will talk to you non-stop about a supplement or a cleanse or whatever until you give in and try it. I'm a gay guy and I take care of myself and so it's not like she's worried about my health for some reason. I don't know what it is, really. I just know it's getting worse and it's making me want to not be around her as much anymore. How do I even broach this topic with her and get her to stop? I mean, I've told her time and time again I don't want to try most of them but she keeps pushing until I try it for a week or two. Help!

Good gravy, she sounds like a pain in the wheat grass! I'm sure she's a lovely girl otherwise, but we've all know this particular kind of nut and it's rarely everyone's favorite. From where I stand (well into my golden years and still slurping down gin and juice rather than juicing), you have two main choices. First, if you want to avoid conflict but don't mind being a sneaky Pete... pull a prank on her. The next stupid Gwyneth Paltrow Goop nonsense she twists your arm into... fake that it actually makes you sick. Don't swallow arsenic or anything but simply tell her you had a terrible reaction to it and your doctor connected it to her snake oil miracle cure. It's should either spook her enough or guilt her enough to pump the brakes on her sales pitches. It would also give you the ability to always refer back to "that time you had to miss work for two days because she had you shove rose quartz up your ass". If acting isn't your game, then it's time to pick a fight. You're a grown ass man and it's fair to say to a grown ass woman, "my body, my choice!" Call it like it is. Her need to feel like she's "on trend" and uber healthy shouldn't include everyone around her having to join the bandwagon. Tell her if she won't stop hard selling you on supplements, you're not gonna hang out with her as much. Basically, give her a time out. If she's so damn healthy she should be able to see when she's making a dear relationship sick.

Dear Nana,

What did people do back in the days before air conditioning when summer came? I mean, how did you even deal with the heat? I can barely stand walking from the house to the car in August. Where there tricks to staying cool? I figured I should find out just in case my old AC unit finally gives out this month.

You want to know how we stayed cool... back before Noah's flood? Here was the real trick: WE DIDN'T?! When it was gross out, we were gross. And also remember deodorant sure wasn't what it's cracked up to be now. Mostly it just made it smell like you'd thrown flowers on an open grave. Sure, we'd keep the shades in the house closed in the day so too much light wouldn't heat up the house more. You'd take a cold bath or shower. But mostly you'd get drunk as soon as you could each day. That's still my best advice. Good luck, kiddo!

DO YOU HAVE PROBLEMS? OF COURSE YOU DO! WHY NOT LET NANA HELP YOU?!
