MAN ABOUT TOWN

It's a Summer Sunday in Key West, so I set out on a day with the boys.

My first stop was to Le Crêperie on Petronia Street for some brunch. This small bistro is just the right amount of French Cafe and Key West Quirkiness. The cafe is small with some quaint outdoor dining so we had a brief wait for a table. Once seated, we were warned that the kitchen was a little backed up but that was fine as I was with a group and it was fun to catch up. The menu had everything you would expect in a French Cafe from galettes, croques, paninis, and crepes, as well as omelettes, and even something as simple as scrambled eggs with sausages.

The food was hot when it arrived and the table ordered a few different items so it was good to see a sampling of the menu. It was well worth the wait.

After that, a quick stop at Island House for the Hot Naked Pool Party. Well, it was supposed to be a quick stop but the naked shot boys may have kept our attention a bit longer than we anticipated. We stayed long enough to enjoy a great lunch. My favorite to select a few small plates and a few items from "boards and bites" and have the whole table share and sample.

From there, we headed over to La Te Da for the world famous Tea Dance. If you don't know what a Tea Dance is, you have clearly been living under a rock for your entire life. DJ Rude Girl spins the best gay anthems getting everyone out on the dance floor. It's almost sad to hear the last song but as we headed out, we followed the parade of people to Mangoes After Tea.

Mangoes has a great upstairs function room where they host an after tea dance party. The music and dancing continued well into the night.

I then realized that Sunday was over and I never touched any laundry or mowed my lawn. Oh well, maybe next week.

IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION

What is the most important information I should know about BIKTARVY®?

BIKTARVY may cause serious side effects:

- ▶ Worsening of hepatitis B (HBV) infection. If you have both HIV-1 and HBV and stop taking BIKTARVY, your HBV may suddenly get worse. Do not stop taking BIKTARVY without first talking to your healthcare provider, as they will need to monitor your health.

Who should not take BIKTARVY?

Do not take BIKTARVY if you take:

- ▶ dofetilide
- ▶ rifampin
- ▶ any other medicines to treat HIV-1

What are the other possible side effects of BIKTARVY?

Serious side effects of BIKTARVY may also include:

- ▶ Changes in your immune system. Your immune system may get stronger and begin to fight infections. Tell your healthcare provider if you have any new symptoms after you start taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ Kidney problems, including kidney failure. Your healthcare provider should do blood and urine tests to check your kidneys. If you develop new or worse kidney problems, they may tell you to stop taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ Too much lactic acid in your blood (lactic acidosis), which is a serious but rare medical emergency that can lead to death. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you get these symptoms: weakness or being more tired than usual, unusual muscle pain, being short of breath or fast breathing, stomach pain with nausea and vomiting, cold or blue hands and feet, feel dizzy or lightheaded, or a fast or abnormal heartbeat.

- ▶ Severe liver problems, which in rare cases can lead to death. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you get these symptoms: skin or the white part of your eyes turns yellow, dark “tea-colored” urine, light-colored stools, loss of appetite for several days or longer, nausea, or stomach-area pain.

The most common side effects of BIKTARVY in clinical studies were diarrhea (6%), nausea (5%), and headache (5%). Tell your healthcare provider if you have any side effects that bother you or don't go away.

What should I tell my healthcare provider before taking BIKTARVY?

- ▶ All your health problems. Be sure to tell your healthcare provider if you have or have had any kidney or liver problems, including hepatitis virus infection.
- ▶ All the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, antacids, laxatives, vitamins, and herbal supplements. BIKTARVY and other medicines may affect each other. Keep a list of all your medicines and show it to your healthcare provider and pharmacist, and ask if it is safe to take BIKTARVY with all of your other medicines.
- ▶ If you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if BIKTARVY can harm your unborn baby. Tell your healthcare provider if you become pregnant while taking BIKTARVY.
- ▶ If you are breastfeeding (nursing) or plan to breastfeed. Do not breastfeed. HIV-1 can be passed to the baby in breast milk.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch, or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Ask your healthcare provider if BIKTARVY is right for you.

LGBT Book Reviews by Terri Schlichenmeyer

“AND THEN WE DANCED: A VOYAGE INTO THE GROOVE” BY HENRY ALFORD

c.2018, Simon & Schuster | $26.00 | 229 pages

You can't stop your feet.

They need to move, to tap-tap-tap, to side step, and do-si-do. The music's on and you gotta move. You can't help it, your toes gotta go and in “And Then We Danced” by Henry Alford, you take the lead.

Think of all the times you danced in your life.

Your first was likely some bouncy-toddler thing you did, and the adults around you laughed. Later, you endured embarrassing and awkward boy-girl classes, or school events until you became cool (even if only in your mind) and snuck into clubs. You've danced at weddings, for fun, for joy; and Alford has danced for work. He's a journalist who immerses himself in his subject in order to write about it but, in the case of dance, he's been immersed his whole life.

Dance, he says, is a “universal language.” If you suddenly found yourself in Siberia and you began dancing, nobody would mistake what you were doing. It's an art, yes – but it's so much more.

Dance, he says, is a way of “Social Entrée.” Cotillions and debutante balls are good examples, dancing in a club falls into this category, and if you ever took classes from an Arthur Murray studio, you get the

Politics can step onto the dance floor, Alford says. Think about your favorite candidate on the campaign trail, dancing with potential constituents. Or think of the Cakewalk, a dance that was “Originally devised as a way for slaves to mock their masters...”

Teenagers know that dance can be a form of rebellion; icons such as Isadora Duncan and Martha Graham knew that, too. Dance can be a form of emotional release, happy, sad, or angry, and it can involve one’s entire body, almost without thought. Any good church choir can tell you that dance is spiritual. With the right group, it can bring on feelings of nostalgia. And dance, if you need it, can be healing.

There’re a few pleasant little surprises to this book about moving your body: it’s also author Henry Alford’s memoir, and it’s a series of mini-biographies of dancers you may know and admire. And it’s delightful.

Part of the reason is that Alford uses his youth as example here: he was a gawky kid who tried very hard to ignore his gayness, an attempt that made junior high boy-girl dances understandably more awkward. His tales are mostly universal (who didn’t hate forced dance class?) and they’ll make you laugh, while anecdotes of researching to write this book – Alford dives into dance, remember – are woven between the life stories of Murray, Duncan, Graham, Savion Glover, Toni Bentley, and other dancers, as well as lighter-side dance history through the ages.

Yes, there are “Awww, naw” moments along here with the Nae Nae, but the joy in this book supersedes any sadness. All in all, it’s a quickstepper, and for a hooper, ballet lover, line dancer, or anyone who shimmies and bops, “And Then We Danced” will have you on your feet.

MY BIG GAY LIFE

Brad Loekle

BRIEING: WHITE GIRLS ARE THE WORST

There is a new trend that all the kids aren't doing. Because even kids could never be this basic and desperate. No, this trend has been invented by the most basic of mammals: the privileged white female. This is not to say that all privileged females (white or otherwise) fall into this category; but the field on which it is played is heavily littered with their broken knock-off heels and shattered dreams.

Brieing. As in making the dairy-based noun "Brie" into an activity. It is the act of consuming ecstasy while at a wine & cheese party. Some of the more Martha-ish hostesses have even taken to putting the drugs into the cheese. It's like when pizza chains put cheese into the crust of our pizzas, except in this case it's a felony.

The creator of this trend (who for some reason is willing to talk to journalists about it) says that it's a way for her and her friends to "unwind and be able to really open up to each other". She has said, "it's so hard for me and my other lady friends to open up emotionally to each other and this is the only thing that seems to work."

That's right, kids! Straight ladies hate each other (and themselves) so much that rolling their internal balls off is the only road they know to liking each other. Apparently that's what was really missing in Hillary Clinton's campaign strategy: she didn't send female voters a hallucinogenic fruit bouquet on November 6th.

If you're a longtime reader, you'll know that I have a great love and respect for wine and cheese... and for drugs. But call me old fashioned, I'd prefer it if neither the twain should meet. I have enough trouble trying to keep my weight in check without having to worry about my pill kicking in and me throat fucking myself with a tube of honey lavender goat cheese.

And my biggest worry is what if Brieing is a gateway drug/food course to much harder stuff? What happens when people start Camemberoin'ing?! Camemberoin'ing is when you blend pure heroin into a soft, buttery Camembert. My guess is people will then use that Camemberoin to make a nice artisanal "smack & cheese"; which they bring to festive family gatherings to help the Trump voters in their family simmer the fuck down.... And possibly kill them. These doped up dishes are, of course, only for members of your social circle who aren't smacktose intolerant.

And why are they blending drugs that have to relation to food... with food? No one's gonna be mad at a Manchaguojuana party, am I right?! A nice Spanish-themed, weed-infused cheese board followed by a kiddy pool full of paella which you and your guests beast upon because you are higher than Donald Trump's crimes. And those are some high crimes.

All that being said, if anyone is having a Brieing party... I'm open to an invitation. Why should I be the only white bitch not doing it?

Key West
Close To Perfect - Far From Normal
WHERE EVERYBODY BELONGS

Welcome To Key West WOMENFEST

Welcome to our little island paradise! Whether you are a first-time visitor or come to our island regularly we hope you enjoy your time here. This year we have a lot to celebrate! Forty years ago, a group of Gay owned businesses got together to form the Key West Business Guild. A lot has happened in the past 40 years.

Fifteen years ago, we showed our Pride with the unfurling of the Sea-to-shining-sea Rainbow Flag down Duval St. Gilbert Baker created the original Rainbow flag with its eight colors for San Francisco's Pride in 1978. Over the years two of the colors (hot pink and turquoise) had been dropped due to manufacturing issues. But in Key West 25 years later all eight of the original colors were streaming down Duval Street, from the Gulf of Mexico to the Atlantic Ocean. We are proud that a Rainbow Flag flies at Key West City Hall.

In addition to celebrating the Guild's 40th Anniversary, and the 15th Anniversary of the Sea-to-shining-sea flag we are celebrating WOMENFEST! This gives us the opportunity to demonstrate once more the guiding principle of this little island community with a big heart. We are indeed "One Human Family". It is our official motto and we proudly proclaim that to the millions of visitors we welcome every year.

"Close to Perfect, Far from Normal" sums us up just right!

So welcome to our quirky, fun, little island. Thank you for becoming a part of our family this week. We are glad you are here.

ASK NANA

E-mail your questions to nana@keywestgayrag.com

Dear Nana,

My Boyfriend is really into leather. I don't mind at all but it's just not my thing. We're open and he usually gets his leather sex needs met with his hookups. But every now and then he really wants to have leather/ role play sex with me. Do you think I have to?

Well, first of all, no one "has to" have any form of sex just because they're in a relationship. So get out of that mindset. But, I will say, if you don't hate the sexy time activity that your guy is requesting, it won't kill you to do something that's more for him than yourself. One might even argue it's a sign of a healthy relationship when both people aren't always in it for themselves. And, honey, trust me... there's A LOT more off putting or mind fucking sex that he could be into. Imagine if he was a diehard fisting top and you a genteel Asian bottom. Or if he could only get his rocks off by shitting on your glass coffee table. And you just got that coffee table and are not about to start ruining the brass on it with his fecal fantasies. What I'm saying is that you have to put up with something in a relationship. And I say we should all keep in perspective what that something is. Imagine if he was emotionally bottled up and violent instead?! Unless, of course, that's YOUR sexual fantasy, in which case, huzzah!

Do I think you should force yourself to have unsatisfying sex on a regular basis just because it makes him happy? No. Do I think that sometimes making the person you love happier than you are in a moment can be a good thing? I do. So best of luck and if it doesn't work out, I'd advise avoided the leather bars when you're single again.

Dear Nana,

My boyfriend is the kind of guy who has to have everything his way or it's the highway. And I bring up the highway because recently he did something on the highway that I think might be the straw that broke the camel's back. We were running errands. And, I admit, it had turned into an all day ordeal but we're adults and we needed to get a lot done. We had two last things to do and he decided it was time to go home. I told him he could just stay in the car and I'd be back as fast as I could. That wasn't good enough, so to force me to go home... he peed his pants in the car. Do you think I should confront him on his behaviors or is this relationship just past its time?

Ummm... you need to pack all your shit and leave his pissy ass immediately. That sort of behavior in a CHILD is enough to send them to a counselor or, quite possibly, military school. But that sort of behavior in an adult? No, ma'am. He is a straight up loon and you don't need that in your life. And, by the way, loon is the appropriate term for this... since loons are found On Golden Pond. And, my dear, Katherine Hepburn you are not. So it's time to move on. And I certainly hope, for your sake, he did that in his car or that your seats were Scotch Guarded.

DO YOU HAVE PROBLEMS? OF COURSE YOU DO! WHY NOT LET NANA HELP YOU?!
